COMMENTARY

Despite ongoing Covid-19 uncertainty and international trade tension, August saw positive returns across almost all regions, in what was the best August for global stock (equity) markets in decades.

The top performer was the tech-heavy Nasdaq in the US, where a number of large technology companies made double-digit gains over the month. The S&P 500 also delivered a strong performance to reach a new record high. Despite ongoing trade friction between the US and China, the Chinese stock market and wider emerging markets also performed well. The European and UK stock markets rose more modestly. The fund outperformed the benchmark index strongly through August. The Core GS position performed in line with benchmark, the majority of positive contribution versus the benchmark stemmed from the Quality growth position in Comgest, the fund also strongly outperformed its style index. The minimum volatility exposure again underperformed a rallying index, the exposure to this fund is minimal. There was smaller contribution to performance from the Value factor position, given its more quality tilt than the cyclical index the fund also outperformed its style index. Additionally, the overall strategy also outperformed the peer group.
